

Vertical aerial photograph taken during a daylight raid by 872 aircraft on German defensive positions around Calais. An Avro Lancaster approaches to attack a position on the coast as the smoke from exploding bombs covers the target area

Photo Source: Imperial War Museums. Catalogue No. CL 1248. Creator No. 635 Squadron RAF. <<http://www.iwm.org.uk/collections/item/object/205023567>>.

Vertical aerial photograph showing Avro Lancasters flying over the smoke-covered target area during a daylight attack by 646 aircraft on German defensive positions four miles west of Calais, France.

Photo Source: Imperial War Museums. Catalogue No. CL 1200. Creator Royal Air Force official photographer. <<http://www.iwm.org.uk/collections/item/object/205023565>>.

Vertical aerial photograph taken during a daylight attack by 872 aircraft on German defensive positions around Calais, France. Three Handley Page Halifaxes, photographed from an Avro Lancaster, can be seen over the target area, a coastal battery, which is obscured by low cloud. The scattered candles of a Target Indicator (TI) can be seen smoking on the beach, which is itself covered with landing obstacles.

Photo Source: Imperial War Museums. Catalogue No. CL 1247. Created by No. 635 Squadron RAF. <<http://www.iwm.org.uk/collections/item/object/205023566>>.

A reconnaissance photograph of the heavily-bombed German V-1 flying-bomb assembly and launch complex at Siracourt in France. The area around the site is heavily pock-marked by bomb craters from previous raids mounted in June by Bomber Command and the USAAF.

Photo Source: Imperial War Museums. Catalogue No. CL 282. Created by No. 542 Squadron RAF. <<http://www.iwm.org.uk/collections/item/object/205023040>>.